Hospice News: HHS Launches Campaign To Boost COVID Vaccinations

Now that COVID vaccinations are becoming widely available in most areas of the U.S., hospice agencies are turning to tackle a looming problem: Patients and especially staff declining to get vaccinations.

The Department of Health and Human Services is trying to help. It's partnering with "medical experts and prominent influencers and organizations" in its "We Can Do This" initiative to educate the public on the safety and importance of vaccinating the nation, an agency release says. Guidance and toolkits are available for providers at <https://wecandothis.hhs.gov/resources>.
