Hospice News: Hospice Access Shrinks

Heart of the Mountains Hospice in Hot Sulphur Springs, Co. is closing its doors, reports 9 News. It was Grand County's only hospice.

"Rural America doesn't have the resources or volume of patients in order to make it work more successfully," executive director Mikee Tennant told the station. "So it's been a struggle financially."

"Now medicine is about making money, and there are shareholders and so the profit margin is much more important than it ever was before," Tennant said.
