Enforcement News: Where Does Your EHR Fall in the 2018 Black Book Rankings?

If you feel like an EHR upgrade is in your future, you may want to peruse the most recent Black Book 2018 top picks before you lay down your cash.

"Black Book Research announced the top ambulatory EHR rankings as collected from 18,950 physician practices in client experience and satisfaction," noted Black Book in a press release on the subject. The research group compiled data from a variety of sources looking at 18 different "performance indicators" to get its current list, which looks at both "loyalty and customer satisfaction," the release suggested.

EHRs continue to shape healthcare at all levels of patient interaction. "It's clear that even in this tightening and increasingly complex ambulatory EHR market, specialist-centric vendors that innovate through integrated EHR, RCM, Coding and PM tools are continuing to lead the small specialist practice market," said Doug Brown, managing partner of Black Book Research in the press statement.
